Exodus From Mexico Has Not Yet Abated

American Refugees Continue to Cross Border in Drove.

ACTION IS TAKEN BY CONGRESS

Provides Funds and Tents to Care
For Unfortunates Who Were Driven Out of Republic by Atrocities of Rebels—Knox Makes Complaint to Madero's Government Which Promises Relief—United States Powerless to Intervene.

Washington, July 31.—Senators and Smoot received numerous grams from El Paso and other border towns telling of conditions brought on by action of the rebels and appealing to the federal government to take prompt action to relieve the situation.

The telegrams stated that 1,200
American refugees had reached El Paso and it was understood that 1,000 more were en route to that city from Casas Grandes, Madera, Pearson and other districts. Many reported that General Orozco and other leaders were also contained in the camps.

Copies of the telegrams were sent to Mr. Edwards, American consul at Mexico and he was instructed to make urgent demands on the Mexican government to send troops to Casas Grandes and other districts without delay to protect the besieged and threatened Americans. The Mexican government replied that troops were already within 30 miles of Casas Grandes on their way there. Everything was being made, it was asserted by government officials, to get within striking distance of the rebels at the earliest possible moment.

Consul Edwards was also instructed to communicate with General Orozco at Juarez and notify him that the United States insists on the protection of Americans from the lawless acts of his soldiers and demands reassurance by him of the rules of civilized warfare.

Hands of Government Tied.

It is admitted at the state department, however, that the hands of the government are practically tied as far as the Mexican situation is concerned. While the declared purpose of General Salazar and others is to persecute the Mormon colonists and other Americans in Mexico with the object of bringing on American intervention has exasperated the state department officials, they feel themselves powerless to help matters much. It is admitted here that should the rebels disregard demands of this government, there is nothing which can be done to punish them.
Intervention by the United States in Mexico is regarded in the light of a catastrophe to American interests rather than as a remedy to the situation.

Prompt action was taken in the house and senate to afford relief to the hundreds of Americans who have fled from Mexico to El Paso because of persecutions and threats upon the part of rebel chiefs under command of General Orozco.
Twenty thousand dollars was appropriated by both houses, to be expended by the secretary of war in the purchase of food for the refugee-resolution was also passed making available for this work the balance left from the funds appropriated for the relief of the food sufferers of the Mississippi valley last spring. The total of these funds is about $175,000.
In addition the war department, without waiting for congress, telegraphed orders to St. Louis for the shipping of tentage for 1,000 persons to El Paso at once by express.

GAMBLER PAID HEAVY TRIBUTE FOR PRIVILEGE

Alleged Collector For Lieutenant Becker Names Figures.

AMOUNT IS $2,400,000 YEARLY

Jack Rose Tells Grand Jury That Becker Told Him Money Was Divided Equally Among Four Men and That His Share Was $600,000—Expresses Belief That This Sum Was Further Divided—Whitman Wants
Men Higher Up.

New York, July 31.—According to the confession made by Jack Rose, which resulted in the jailing of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker on the charge of murdering Herman Rosenthal, the yearly tribute paid by the gamblers and keepers of resorts in New York amounted to $2,400,000.

Rose swore Becker had confided to him that the loot was divided among four police officials—Becker himself, two policemen of higher rank, and a minor official who does not wear a uniform.

"Jack," said Becker, "the rakeoff is so good that my own share was $600,000, and the others got the same."

Becker's collector, having handled
a good deal of the money himself, does not think that Becker or any individual rocketed $600,000 in any one year, but that Becker and his connections were distributing agents and that the $600,000 each received was subdivided.

Just one chance exists for Becker to save himself. The district attorney may conclude to deal leniently with the lieutenant if he can and will tell the truth about who else received the profits of blackmail. There is not, however, the slightest indication that Becker will turn informer. On the contrary, a man with whom he has talked in the past 24 hours said that the lieutenant's defense would be that Rose and Bridgely Webber and Harry Vallon had lied about him for the purpose of saving themselves.

More Work For Grand Jury.

No matter what course Becker may take, the grand jury will be kept in session all summer for the purpose of investigating Rose's statements that the profits of the police ring were $2,400,000 annually. The grand jury will go into information obtained by the district attorney that other police officials as well as a man powerfully connected, but not in the police department, had a stake in the game of graft.

This will be a matter also for the exercise of the special talents of William J. Burns. Burns detectives are already at work, but Burns himself has not yet contracted to remain in New York and direct the investigation. He is holding out for a big fee.
And the district attorney has not yet obtained from William J. Schieffelin and others interested with Mr. Schieffelin a statement as to how much cash they are prepared to spend.

Rose's accusations against Lieutenant Becker were specific and positive. Having obtained, in common with Webber and Vallon, a promise of immunity, Becker's collector was willing to go further.

Thaw Taken Back to Asylum.

tempt to gain his freedom from the Matteawan insane asylum for the criminal insane, was taken back to

PAYS FOR EXCLUSIVENESS.

Tarrytown, N. Y., July 31.— Learning that an option had been given the Catholic foreign missionary society on property adjoining his Pocantico Hills estate, John D. Rockefeller bought the land. The religious organization had agreed to pay $45,000, $35,000 to remain as a mortgage.
Rockefeller paid $68,000 cash.

Insectary or "Bug House" of the Oregon Agricultural College

THE Oregon Agricultural college at Corvallis, Ore., has a new insectary in which problems in the control and extermination of insects are studied. The students call the building the "bug house." Experiments are now being conducted with the cherry slug, wood boring beetles and the canker worm. Tests of insecticides and different sprays are being made on apple trees close to the insectary, and the results will be recorded. The spraying tanks and small trees upon which the insect experiments are being conducted are shown in the upper picture.

After Lengthy Legal Battle Insurance Policies Are Introduced in Trial of Woman Accused of Shooting Husband—Letters, Which Are Characterized as Forgeries by Prosecution,
May Throw Light on Case That Has Atlanta Society on the Jump.

Atlanta, Ga., July 31.—For the first time in the trial of Mrs. Daisy Grace for the alleged shooting of her husband, Eugene Grace, letters were brought into the case which are expected to result in sensational disclosures relative to the domestic life of the Graces. The prosecution, it is now said, plans to show that these letters were written by Mrs.
Grace to establish an alibi and to point suspicion away from her toward a fictitious character she designated as "a bum."

One of them is declared to be a forgery, purporting to be written by Eugene Grace, but, according to the state, actually written by his wife.

Before this startling development came Mrs. Grace had won important victories in the ruling out of evidence of a conversation in which Grace was said to have accused her of the shooting on the night of March 5. Grace himself was lying at the Piedmont sanitarium, barred from the trial by order of his physicians because of an imminent complete breakdown. His temperature has risen to over 103 and he showed the effects of the ordeal plainly. It is expected these letters will be introduced as evidence today and then a long legal battle is certain to ensue.

Insurance Policies Brought In.

Much of the session was spent in an effort to bring the Grace insurance policies into court. Grace had insured his life in his wife's favor for something over $20,000, claiming,
so the insurance company declared, that he was a wealthy man, making many thousands a year. These representations were false, it is said, and after suit was filed to cancel the policies the Graces consented to void them.

After a legal battle the policies were allowed in evidence, but every effort to date to show that a demand was made on Mrs. Grace for these policies, has been blocked.

Eugene Grace's mother, Mrs. S. L.
Hill of Newnan, proved the most important witness of the session. By her the prosecution brought out the alleged motive of the crime, namely, the collecting of his $25,000 life insurance policies. Points in her testimony were that Mrs. Grace came to Newnan on the day of the shooting with a black dress suitable for a mourning costume, that she repeatedly stated that she didn't see how a person shot through the lung, as Grace was then supposed to have been, could be conscious; that Mrs.
Grace was very anxious to know if the officers had gone to the bathroom of her home.

Eugene Grace was in court on a stretcher until the middle of the afternoon. At times he coached the lawyers for the state, and frequently gazed at his wife, who sat with her back toward him. At the middle of the afternoon Grace apparently collapsed and he was removed to a sanitarium.

Cleveland Shaken Up.

Cleveland, O., July 31.—Two store-houses of the Austin Powder company, near Newberg Heights, a few miles from the heart of the city, were blown up. Great damage was done neighboring manufacturing plants and dwellings, but thus far no loss of life has been shown.

Power House Burns.

Akron, O., July 31.—Fire started in the switchboard at the Northern Ohio power house and spread rapidly along the wires in the building. The entire city was in darkness and all the streetcar lines were tied up at the time the fire was burning.

HOUSE STANDS PAT ON TARIFF

Rejects Senate Amendments to All Tariff Bills.

Washington, July 31.—With machine-like precision the Democratic house forced, over all opposition, three tariff measures back upon the senate. They were the wool and the sugar tariff revision bills and the excise tax bill, and all were sent back with none of the amendments accepted. On the wool bill no conference was asked. The house left it flatly to the senate whether that branch desired to pursue the legislation further.

The senate was in a quandary as to the program it would adopt in further consideration of the three bills.
The regular Republicans were reported to be favorable to a plan whereby they would absent themselves from the chamber, thus giving the Democrats a chance to pass the measures and send them along for the presidential veto. The Republican insurgents, however, opposed this scheme,
and insisted that the differences, where they are reconcilable, be threshed out in conference.

NEW ARMORY?

Well if there is anyone in Washington who opposes the plan of transferring the city lot on Market street which is now a catch-all for junk and odds and ends of all kinds, to the state so that a $20,000 armory building may be erected without one penny of cost to our citizens, that one has not come forward with his objections and his reasons for those objections.

THE MENACE OF WOOD ALCOHOL.

The wide-spread discussion which followed the series of deaths in Berlin as a consequence of the drinking of liquors contaminated with wood alcohol has again attracted attention to its poisonous character. There has been considerable difference of opinion as to whether the poisonous effect of this substance is actually due to the alcohol itself or to some impurities, which are almost invariably present in all except the most refined products. There is a scarcity of facts regarding the actual behavior of wood alcohol in the animal body, so that the underlying causes of its extremely poisonous character are by no means clearly understood.

With respect to ordinary grain alcohol, the component of our alcoholic beverages, the facts are better understood. Ordinarily alcohol is, when taken in moderate quantities, rapidly burned up in the body. This fact has been demonstrated by numerous experiments. With wood alcohol, however, the case seems to be different, according to the recent investigations in the Institute for the Fermentation Industries at Berlin. It has been shown that when wood alcohol is administered to animals it may not be eliminated completely even at the end of two days. The repeated ingestion of considerable doses of wood alcohol may lead to a dangerous accumulation thereof in the body. This factor has heretofore not been duly appreciated. These subtle dangers associated with the use of wood alcohol deserve wide-spread notice because of the increasing danger of its unsuspected entrance as an adulterant of the cheaper grades of distilled liquors and certain medicinal products.

The insatiable demand for cheap liquors among certain of the degraded classes, and the difficulty with which the admixture of the inexpensive wood alcohol is detected provide a constant temptation to the unscrupulous dealer and a menace to the health of certain classes. However objectionable adulteration may be on general principles, it becomes far worse when some subtle danger is harbored therein.

Prosperity Awaiting Us

We Are
Needlessly Experiencing
a Sluggish
Development

By DANIEL GUGGENHEIM,
Capitalist

WE NOW HAVE, AS I SEE IT, PRENATAL PROSPERITY, WHICH, IF ALLOWED TO BE BORN, WILL, I BELIEVE, GROW INTO THE GREATEST THIS COUNTRY HAS EVER EXPERIENCED.

Will it be permitted to come into being, and if so, will it be permitted to reach maturity? Unless the present UNREASONABLE ANTAGONISM TO CAPITAL ceases the answer must be in the negative in both cases. These great United States are ONLY DEVELOPED TO A LIMITED EXTENT in comparison with the development which would be reached if it was not unnaturally interfered with. By reason of this interference the money of this country is being loaned to Germany and is being used to assist in the financing of China and in the development of the resources of South America.

We do not hear of much new railroad construction here, and the reasons are obvious. The UNWISE STRIFE which has been going on for some years is a deterrent factor of tremendous moment. Can a household, a firm, a corporation or a nation succeed when there is STRIFE WITHIN?

The Bible says, "A house divided against itself cannot stand." I do not mean by this that there should be no honest differences of opinion, but great success only comes with harmony.

WE HAVE HAD FOUR YEARS OF BITTER AND UNREASONING HOSTILITY TO CAPITAL, AND THE RESULT IS PAINFULLY APPARENT, WHILE THE GREAT COUNTRIES OF ENGLAND, GERMANY AND FRANCE HAVE HAD ENORMOUS PROSPERITY. WE HAVE GREATER NATURAL RESOURCES THAN THOSE THREE COUNTRIES COMBINED, BUT WE HAVE BEEN DRIVING OUR CAPITAL AWAY, AND IT HAS BEEN UTILIZED IN BUILDING UP OTHER COUNTRIES INSTEAD OF BEING EMPLOYED IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF OUR OWN.

ALL SHE NEEDS.

I like all kinds of little girls;
I love their laughter an' their curls;
They're never commonplace nor dull—
I say that they're all beautiful;
My wife snaps out: "You know they ain't!"
You can't tell me that girls who paint
Are beautiful, the way you said,
An' them that stains their lips all red
An' goes and marks their eyebrows black—
I guess you'll have to take it back!"

She looks me over, thisaway,
An' then she says: "You mean to say
A girl that wears a hobble skirt
An' high heel shoes an' tries to flirt,
An' laces till her nose is red
An' wears big puffs upon her head,
An' paints her lips an' eyebrows too,
Is pretty?" And I says: "I do.
In country lane or city street
Young girls is always mighty sweet."
Why, I could take one of them girls
An' pull the fixin's off her curls,
An' take her to the laundry tub
An' give her face a healthy scrub,
An' shuck her corsets so she'd be
In shape for breathin' deep and free,
An' put her in a gingham gown,
An' leave her curls all tumbled down,
An' send her out upon the street,

WASHING WITH CLAY.

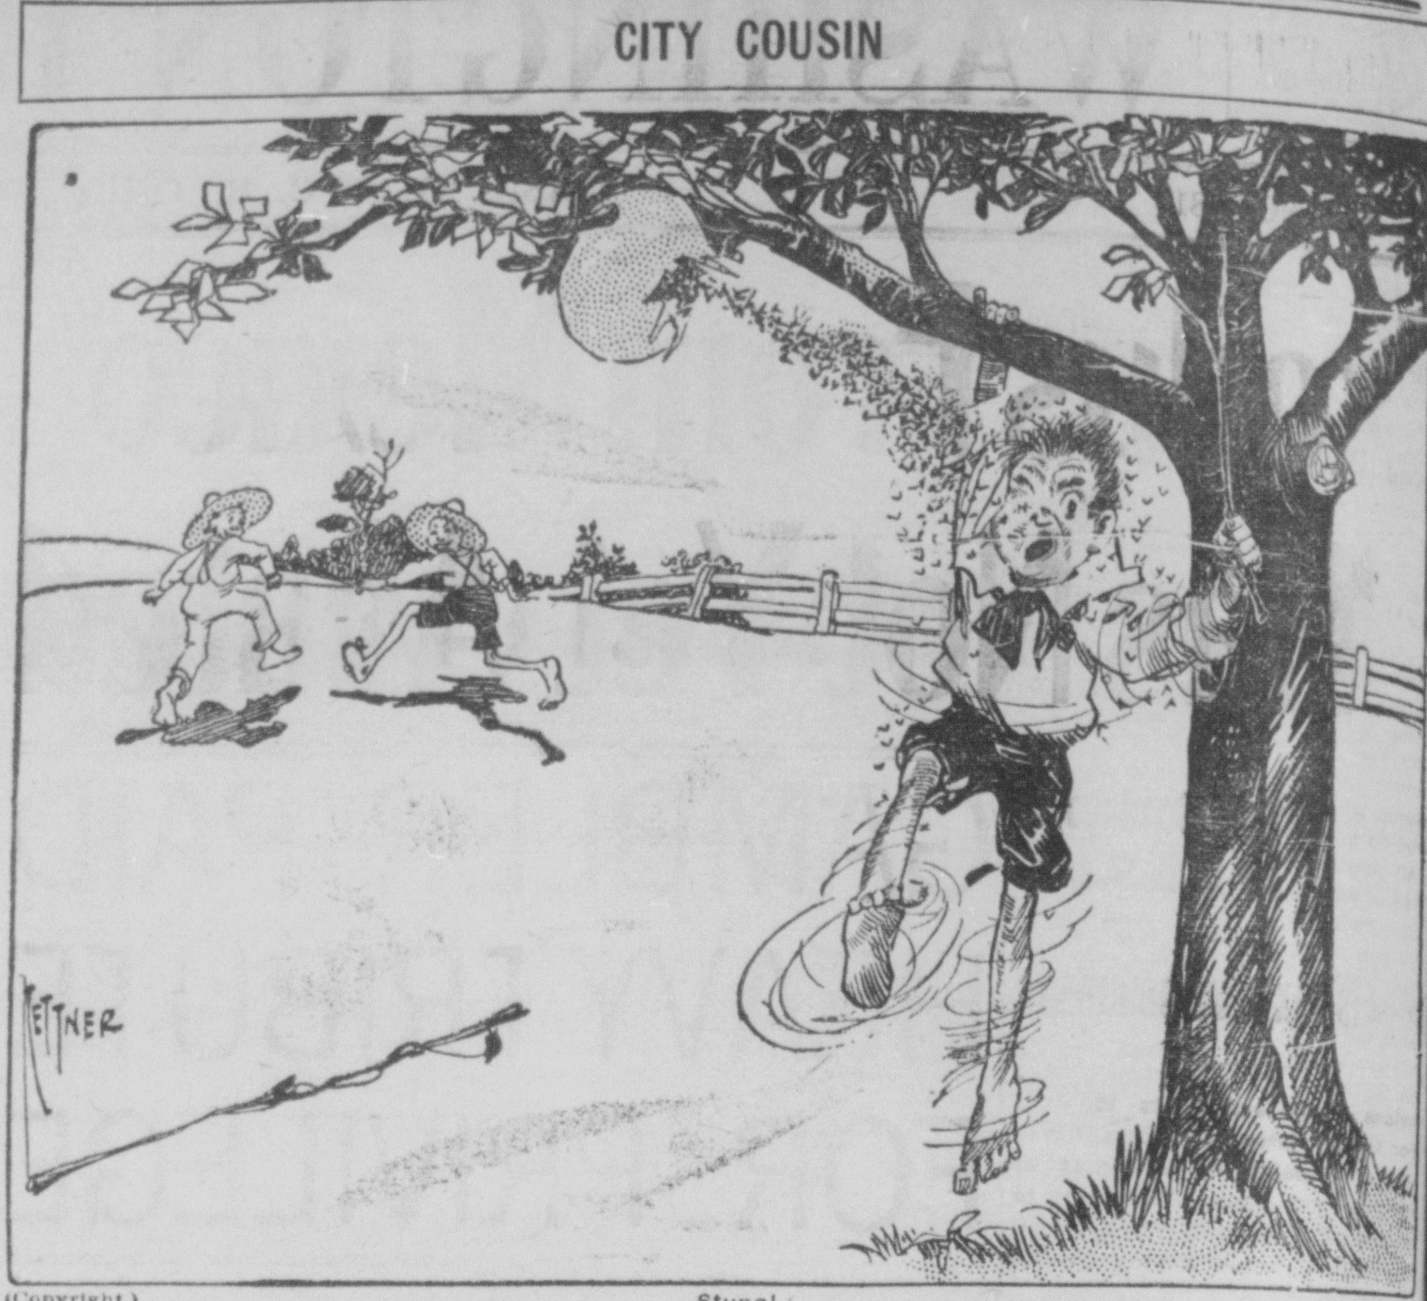

A savage tribe in Africa daubs cloth with clay, then rubs the dirt out in the river. That's a good deal like using a hunk of yellow soap that is made heavy with rosin and stale grease. The rosin stays in the cloth and keeps some of the dirt with it, and then your clothes look streaky. Easy Task laundry soap—the white soap made of coconut oil, borax, naphtha and wholesome tallow—takes the dirt out. That's its business—taking dirt out and driving disease germs away. Twenty-five years of reputation back of it, and still it is but five cents a cake.

Jeffersonville.

Tax day last week showed Jefferson township as well paid up as any township in the county at that time, if not the best.

Hog cholera has made its return to some parts of the township.

Crop conditions: Wheat, 15 per cent acreage, 75 per cent yield; Oats, 40 to 70 bushels per acre; Corn prospects very poor with average condition not very forward.

Miss Hazel Beatty returned Friday from Oxford where she attended school this summer. She will teach in Concord township the coming season.

The first car of the new traction line has not yet made its appearance.

Mrs. Stella Frazell of Springfield visited her mother, Mrs. M. A. Tobin the past week.

Vacation time is now on and comers and goers are thick in the vicinity of the D. T. & I.

M. M. Eichelberger has contracted for the painting of seven of the 14 township schools. The contract for the other seven will be let soon.

Mr. G. M. Hiner, who succeeded Dr. Caswell here, is having all the work he can do.

The automobile fever is not progressing much in the vicinity, some selling, other buying.

F. N. Armstrong and wife of Dayton are visiting relatives in this vicinity.

Mrs. Thurman Horney and family are visiting with her mother, Mrs. J. C. Hays.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Mock, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Mock and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Tudor are camping and fishing near Bainbridge.

Jeffersonville needs some more desirable houses for rent.

Mrs. W. W. Jones is expected home this week from a month's visit in New York with J. M. Jones and wife.

Capt. G. M. Eichelberger has been spending the past month with friends and relatives in West Virginia and Maryland.

John Edwards recently sold his race horse, Andy McKinney, to Lima parties for the sum of $1000.00. The new owner won two races with him there in a week.

Some from here are attending the Jamestown Chautauqua.

Otto Fent returned home Saturday evening from the Grant Hospital, Columbus, where he was operated upon for appendicitis.

FORBIDDEN CITY IS ENTERED

Walata, Once the Center of African Civilization, Now Nothing but Heap of Ruins.

Another "Mysterious city of the desert has given up its secrets; Walata has been entered by a white explorer." Until last January Walata—Oualata, the French spell it—was more mysterious even than fabled Timbuctu, its distant neighbor.

In the tenth century Walata was a great city, the center of civilization, from which the religion of Islam spread throughout western Africa.

Up to the twelfth century it was the prosperous capital of the kingdom of Gana, the market to which came all the nations of Africa, with caravan routes across the desert to Tunis, Touat, Tafflet and Fez. Here gathered the wise men and the doctors of the law of Mahomet.

Then, like all Babylons and all Tyres, it began to decline. Timbuctu, a younger city, gradually stole away its trade and usurped its position as an intellectual center. In the fourteenth century it had lost its splendor.

Two centuries more and the sultans of Morocco, extending their conquests to the south, occupied it and it became only one of the many conquered towns.

Finally Walata became the home of the bands of robbers who terrorized all the country around. With the possible exception of Laing in 1826, no white man had seen it, and its pirate masters had resolved that none should enter it.

But last winter Colonel Roulet, French commandant at Timbuctu, determined to dispel the mystery. At the head of a camel corps of 200 soldiers, he marched across the desert and occupied the city without firing a shot, eighteen years to the month after the French entry into Timbuctu.

Only a few poor families now live in the ruins of what was once a great city, as the remains of its walls, citadel and massive mosques testify. There are left, even, some decorations of the style made familiar by the Alhambra, that prove that once the arts were studied here as well as in the other Moorish empire north of the straits of Gibraltar.

Travel of Two Casks of Wine.

If wine could talk, there are two casks of it which passed through Houston the other day which would tell an interesting story.

This wine, consigned to a firm in Baltimore, was aboard the El Sud when that boat sank just out of Galveston over two weeks ago. Three days ago the casks were picked up by life savers of the United States life saving station at Point Isabel, near Brownsville.

They were brought to Brownsville and turned over to the St. Louis, Brownsville & Mexican railroad. J. A. Brown, general freight agent of the line, ordered the goods shipped on to the firm to whom they were originally consigned. The address of this firm was still visible on the casks and there was no mistaking to whom they should be sent. The wine will be turned over to the Morgan line at Galveston Monday.

There is some doubt existing in the minds of railroad officials as to whom the liquor should be checked. It is the first case on record of goods being given up by the sea to a railroad company, and there is no book in the office for keeping track of this class of freight. The wine was originally sent by the Italian colony of Southern California.—Houston Post.

THE MENACE OF WOOD ALCOHOL.

The wide-spread discussion which followed the series of deaths in Berlin as a consequence of the drinking of liquors contaminated with wood alcohol has again attracted attention to its poisonous character. There has been considerable difference of opinion as to whether the poisonous effect of this substance is actually due to the alcohol itself or to some impurities, which are almost invariably present in all except the most refined products. There is a scarcity of facts regarding the actual behavior of wood alcohol in the animal body, so that the underlying causes of its extremely poisonous character are by no means clearly understood.

With respect to ordinary grain alcohol, the component of our alcoholic beverages, the facts are better understood. Ordinarily alcohol is, when taken in moderate quantities, rapidly burned up in the body. This fact has been demonstrated by numerous experiments. With wood alcohol, however, the case seems to be different, according to the recent investigations in the Institute for the Fermentation Industries at Berlin. It has been shown that when wood alcohol is administered to animals it may not be eliminated completely even at the end of two days. The repeated ingestion of considerable doses of wood alcohol may lead to a dangerous accumulation thereof in the body. This factor has heretofore not been duly appreciated. These subtle dangers associated with the use of wood alcohol deserve wide-spread notice because of the increasing danger of its unsuspected entrance as an adulterant of the cheaper grades of distilled liquors and certain medicinal products.

The insatiable demand for cheap liquors among certain of the degraded classes, and the difficulty with which the admixture of the inexpensive wood alcohol is detected provide a constant temptation to the unscrupulous dealer and a menace to the health of certain classes. However objectionable adulteration may be on general principles, it becomes far worse when some subtle danger is harbored therein.

Poetry - Today

ALL SHE NEEDS.

I like all kinds of little girls;
I love their laughter an' their curls;
They're never commonplace nor dull—
I say that they're all beautiful;
My wife snaps out: "You know they ain't!"
You can't tell me that girls who paint
Are beautiful, the way you said,
An' them that stains their lips all red
An' goes and marks their eyebrows black—
I guess you'll have to take it back!"

She looks me over, thisaway,
An' then she says: "You mean to say
A girl that wears a hobbie skirt
An' high heel shoes an' tries to flirt,
An' laces till her nose is red
An' wears big puffs upon her head,
An' paints her lips an' eyebrows too,
Is pretty?" And I says: "I do.
In country lane or city street
Young girls is always mighty sweet."

Why, I could take one of them girls
An' pull the fixin's off her curls,
An' take her to the laundry tub
An' give her face a healthy scrub,
An' shuck her corsets so she'd be
In shape for breathin' deep and free,
An' put her in a gingham gown,
An' leave her curls all tumbled down,
An' send her out upon the street,
An' even wife would say she's sweet!

Prosperity Awaiting Us

We Are
Needlessly Experiencing
a Sluggish
Development

By DANIEL GUGGENHEIM,
Capitalist

WE NOW HAVE, AS I SEE IT, PRENATAL PROSPERITY, WHICH, IF ALLOWED TO BE BORN, WILL, I BELIEVE, GROW INTO THE GREATEST THIS COUNTRY HAS EVER EXPERIENCED.

Will it be permitted to come into being, and if so, will it be permitted to reach maturity? Unless the present UNREASONABLE ANTAGONISM TO CAPITAL ceases the answer must be in the negative in both cases. These great United States are ONLY DEVELOPED TO A LIMITED EXTENT in comparison with the development which would be reached if it was not unnaturally interfered with. By reason of this interference the money of this country is being loaned to Germany and is being used to assist in the financing of China and in the development of the resources of South America.

We do not hear of much new railroad construction here, and the reasons are obvious. The UNWISE STRIFE which has been going on for some years is a deterrent factor of tremendous moment. Can a household, a firm, a corporation or a nation succeed when there is STRIFE WITHIN?

The Bible says, "A house divided against itself cannot stand." I do not mean by this that there should be no honest differences of opinion, but great success only comes with harmony.

WE HAVE HAD FOUR YEARS OF BITTER AND UNREASONING HOSTILITY TO CAPITAL, AND THE RESULT IS PAINFULLY APPARENT, WHILE THE GREAT COUNTRIES OF ENGLAND, GERMANY AND FRANCE HAVE HAD ENORMOUS PROSPERITY. WE HAVE GREATER NATURAL RESOURCES THAN THOSE THREE COUNTRIES, BUT WE HAVE BEEN DRIVING OUR CAPITAL AWAY, AND HAD BEEN UTILIZED IN BUILDING UP OTHER COUN-

AT WILLIE'S BEDTIME

WHEN MOTHER HAS SESSION WITH FRACTIOUS OFFSPRING.

Of Course You Never Heard a Woman Talk Like This—If He Was Your Boy What Would You Do?

Willie, will you just look at that clock? You have looked at it? Then why don't you get ready for bed? You know that you must always be in bed by 8:30. I don't care if Ted Thomas does sit up until nine. Half-past eight is your bedtime—and stop that muttering! You know that I have told you many times not to mutter and—No, you cannot sit up to study your home lesson! Strange that you never think of your home lesson until your bedtime! You will have time to study in the morning if you get up early. Yes, you will! No, the clock is not half an hour fast! I had your father set it by his watch this very morning. No, you can't just finish that story. You have had the whole evening in which to read and study, and you have done nothing but dawdle. Now you are very eager to read and study, aren't you? I don't care anything about what other boys do, for—If you do not stop that muttering I shall call your father! Yes, you will care! And I want you to wash your hands good before you go to bed. When did you wash them? No, it isn't only boys who have clean hands. Willie Smythe, will you just bear in mind that it is your mother to whom you are speaking? Yes, you act as if you knew it! You will have cause to remember it if I call your father. He isn't your mother, as you very well know. Don't you be impertinent! That is one thing your mother will not put up with, as I have told you a hundred times! Why don't you take off your shoes? You pick up that necktie! The idea of flinging things around the room like that! That isn't the place for your jacket! I'd like to know what the house would look like if I wasn't particular! Stop jerking so at that shoe lace! I don't care if it is in a hard knot. Jerking like that will only make the knot harder. Now, I knew that you would break that shoe lace! You would try the patience of—Willie! You pick up that shoe and put it where it belongs at night! No, you cannot have something to eat before you go to bed. The idea of it! After all the supper you had. What are you taking all of those things out of your pockets for? You put them right back! It would take a good hour to look over all of the things in your pockets. What under the sun, moon and stars are you carrying around three dirty handkerchiefs for? And you were fussing yesterday because you couldn't find a clean handkerchief!

Now you hustle off to the bathroom and give those hands a good scrubbing! You wish that you lived in a land where there wasn't any water? How long do you think that you would live there? You give those hands a good scrubbing! Use plenty of soap. Be sure and wash back of your ears. Use plenty of water. I never saw such a boy as you are, to think that you can get yourself clean with half a reacup or water. Your towel isn't on its hook? I am sure that isn't if you were the only one who used it last. Look for—And you call yourself washed already? Let me see your hands. Willie Smythe! The idea of you calling those hands washed! They will do for tonight, but you have simply got to wash yourself in dead earnest in the morning. I shall look after those ears myself then. Now you go to your room and to bed. It is a good three-quarters of an hour after your regular bedtime, and you know that mother always insists on your going to bed at exactly 8:30, and the sooner you learn that you must mind your mother, the better. I don't believe that you have been in bed at 8:30 for a month. You can't find your nightgown? Judging from the rest of the stuff in your pockets, perhaps your nightgown is there. No, you shall not go to bed without it. You'll find it somewhere in the closet in your room. You found it? I knew that you would. I want that muttering stopped! It's the tenth time tonight that I have told you to stop muttering, and you know that when mother speaks she has to be obeyed! Goodnight, Willie! That's a pretty way to say goodnight to your mother, isn't it? You most certainly cannot take a book to bed with you for a little while! Bud Deane says he reads in bed every night? That is nothing to me. If his mother wants to let him do anything that foolish, she can; but your mother is not that kind of a woman. Get right into bed and put out that light. Such a time as I have getting you to bed every night, and I'll have a worse time getting you up in the morning. Got that light out? You'd better! Stop that whistling! Goodnight, Willie! Dear, dear, these boys!—Judge.

Swiss Army Scandal.

Much attention has been devoted by the Swiss newspapers of late to the case of a young Swiss officer, at St. Gall, who ordered a corporal to beat a private with his sword belt for a minor offense. When the colonel of the regiment heard of the affair he promptly placed both lieutenant and corporal under arrest, and the private was sent to hospital. The young officer has just been sentenced to ten days' confinement to barracks and the corporal to five days. The affair, however, has not yet ended, as the victim can claim damages for assault.

CONQUEST OF THE EARTH

Achievements of Past Twelve Years Not Equalled in Any Similar Period in History.

Though in days pre-eminent for man's conquest of Nature by science and engineering, says World's Work, Amundsen's journey to the South Pole, like Peary's to the North Pole, was made with only the appliances of previous generations. The poles were discovered by the endurance of dogs and men, spurred on by the old spirit of adventure and the lust for difficult and dangerous tasks that stirred the adventurers of old. In another century or two the era of the pole discoveries will be hailed as the good old times when men were still men and civilization had not made the world effete.

The twelve years ending with the discovery of the South Pole are as full of dramatic achievement as the days of Drake and Raleigh, for not even in those times was there a more extraordinary series of discoveries and conquests packed into a dozen years.

In 1900 only one man had been the length of Africa by land, and the Cape to Cairo Railroad was but a dream. There was not a railroad across South America. A great part of Siberia was without rail or road except the old caravan trails. China was practically without railroads. Lhasa was unknown, forbidden to the white man. During a century and a half men had tried to reach the South Pole and failed, and the North Pole had baffled the efforts of four hundred years.

Within a dozen years white men have traveled over the great desert, visited Lake Chad, made a protective over Timbuctoo. The days of the Mahdi at Khartum are ended and any tourist may travel there comfortably by rail. The Cape to Cairo Railroad is an assured fact. The heart of Africa is now no more remote from the popular imagination than Oklahoma City was in 1900.

In South America the Trans-Andean Railroad is in full operation across the continent as the Trans-Siberian is across Asia. Even China has her railroads. Lhasa has been visited by a British army and both poles are the common property of every fireside that boasts of books, magazines or newspapers.

Such a record may justify a feeling of pride that the spirit of conquest and adventure is as alive as ever and accompanied with all the courage and hardihood that blessed any earlier generation.

MRS. SMITH'S HIRED GIRL.

Mrs. Smith is lucky. She has kept a servant for three years, and although the girl has been offered more money elsewhere she won't leave Mrs. Smith. The girl does all the washing, scrubs the floors, does up the lace curtains, and even washes the bedding. People wonder why she stays at Mrs. Smith's and does so much more work than other girls can be induced to do, until they learn that Mrs. Smith buys Easy Task Laundry soap, which does one-half the work and makes the other half easier.

NIGHT LIFE ON BROADWAY

What Happened to Young Girl Who Did Not Know Dangers Hidden in Wine Cup.

She was just a little girl—17 years old, perhaps—sitting at a table in one of New York's all night restaurants. Behind her cabaret singers brayed through their songs. A squad of lively violins shrieked and scraped. Now and then the dancers twisted and writhed their way through the narrow aisles and the men and women at the tables sat up a little straighter and bought more wine. Outside rain was falling drearily.

Within all was warmth and animation and clamor. The little girl was unused to it, perhaps. Her skin still bore the clear tint of youth and perfect health. Her cheeks had not lost that curve which persists until maturity is reached. Her eyes were big and round, and she watched the scene with far more of interest than she gave to her table mates. Now and then the thick-nosed man with her demanded her attention, and she gave him a perfunctory glance and smile. She drank her wine with an avidity which betokened inexperience. The other women at her table sipped their wine carefully. They knew its dangers.

Suddenly, without a word, the little girl fell from her chair to the floor. She fell heavily, inertly, as a log might fall. The hard-faced waiters rushed to carry her into a dressing room. The party at her own table ordered more wine and talked louder.

Those who sat near forgot the incident, until ten, perhaps fifteen, minutes had passed. Then they saw the child her eyes glazed with drink, barely able to stand upon her feet, her hat awry, her coat flaring open above her tawdry little bodice, with its deeply scored V at the neck, being led down the aisle, a waiter on either side. The door was opened and she was thrown out upon the street. Before the double leaves of the door closed those sitting within caught a fleeting glimpse of the long gray shafts of rain, slanting downward under the glare of arc lights, hissing into the puddles gathered on the gleaming cobbles.

Real High Jumpers in Africa.

The sensation caused by George Horine, the Stanford university student, who has been smashing high-jumping records, calls to mind the high jumping seen recently by the duke of Mecklenburg during a trip through the German East African protectorate. An account of it is given in the Geographic Magazine. The jumpers were of the Watussi tribe. "A tall, well-made people, with an almost ideal physique, their stature ranging from 'five feet eleven and a half inches' to seven feet two and a half inches." The exactness of the figures indicates that the duke did not depend on guesswork and estimate. In any case, the Watussi can jump in proportion to their height—the best performer cleared eight feet and five inches. Even the Watussi "kids" got over the bar at a height of five feet. The conditions are thus described by the duke: "A line which could be raised or lowered at will was stretched between two slender trees standing on an incline. The athletes had to run up to this and jump from a small termite heap a foot in height." But the termite heap's rub: a foot off the record, that means. Still the Germans ought to send post haste to the Watussi country for a couple of high jumpers and include them in their Olympic team.

China a Market for Jellyfish.

A very profitable industry in Chosen on a new line has been suggested by the authorities of the fishery section of the government-general. It is the fishing for jellyfish, so abundantly found in the seas of West Chosen.

While the sea offers much obstruction to the fishing industry in general, as its presence in large numbers often makes the use of nets impossible and sometimes compels fishermen to abandon their work, the fish itself will bring in a large amount of money if caught, properly prepared and exported to China for cooking purposes. China is a vast market for it, for it is there that salted jellyfish is considered a great delicacy and one of the indispensable foodstuffs, especially in summer.

There is a great demand for it every year from Shanghai, Ningpo, Hongkong and Canton. In Whangshai province great numbers of them are often seen drifted ashore after a storm, and as many of them as one wishes can be gathered gratis. Unemployed Koreans may be hired at low wages as gatherers or workmen in preparing the jellyfish for salting.—Seoul Press.

Pleads for the Guitar.

The London Pall Mall Gazette urges the cultivation of the guitar. "The guitar has always been typical of the troubadour spirit, and its revival might herald a return to the gentle chivalry of earlier times." The writer insists that the guitar is more suitable than the piano as an accompaniment to the voice; it can be played indoors or in the open air with equally good effect "and on the river the harplike quality of its tone is simply entrancing." Furthermore, a large variety of compositions, grave and gay, romantic and classical, are suited to its strings. As an accompanying instrument it "is exceptionally easy to play."

RECORDED QUEER BET

LOSER PAID GUINEA A DAY FOR THREE YEARS.

Made Wager with Clergyman Based on Expectation of Napoleon's Death and Finally Was Released From It by a Jury.

"One of the most curious bets I ever heard of was made in England a hundred years ago," said Angus McGregor, an attorney of Edinburgh, Scotland, at the Belvedere.

"The wager was between a knight, who was also a member of parliament, and a clergyman, for in that day it was not considered scandalous for dominies to put up their money on sporting propositions. It is but fair to the preacher, however, to say that the other man did the bantering, and this was the knight's singular offer: That if anyone of a crowd present would put up 100 guineas (something over $500) he would give to such person one guinea a day during the remainder of the lifetime of Napoleon Bonaparte.

"In making such an extraordinary offer he evidently thought the great Corsican had but a few days to live. Before the others in the company could recover from the shock of the strange proposal, the clergyman shouted out that he would accept the terms and then and there the wager or deal was consummated, there being witnesses to the act of the minister in putting 100 guineas into the challenger's hands.

"A splendid bet it was for the reverend gentleman, but a miserably poor one for the other, who had to surrender a guinea every day and this he continued to do for the better part of three years. Along toward the close of 1814 the knight wearied of his losing game. As you-American say, he began to have cold feet. At first he tried to beg off, but the parson would not listen to his entreaties. A bet was a bet he contended, and the fact that he was ahead to the tune of some 900 guineas made him not in the least compassionate. Boney might live a good while longer and that daily revenue was very sweet.

"As a last resort the knight refused to pay any longer, and the parson brought suit before a judge. Eloquent and learned counsel spoke on both sides, but it must have been that the advocate for the defendant knight produced the most convincing argument in telling the jury why his client should not be made to pay any longer.

"In the first place," said the lawyer, his client had not in the beginning made the bet seriously; it was a sort of jocular proposal, but once being made the proponent was too game to back out. Secondly, it was contrary to public policy to give legal sanction to such a bet. Napoleon was Britain's most dreaded foe and for a British subject to have a pecuniary interest in prolonging the enemy's life was a horrid and untenable thought. The jury took the same view and freed the knight from further payments."—Baltimore American.

The Best Woman.

Miss Susan B. Anthony, the social reformer, had no more bitter opponent than Horace Greeley, the famous editor and journalist. It was for a long time his custom to wind up all debates with the conclusive remark: "The best women I know do not want to vote."

When the New York constitution was being altered in 1867 Miss Anthony laid a trap for him, says a biographer. She wrote to Mrs. Greeley and persuaded her not only to sign a petition herself, but to circulate the paper and get 300 signatures among her acquaintances.

In committee Mr. Greeley, who was chairman, had listened to the debate and was prepared to introduce to the convention an adverse report. He was just about to utter his usual "settler" when George William Curtis rose.

"Mr. Chairman," said he, "I hold in my hand a petition for suffrage signed by 300 women of Westchester, headed by Mrs. Horace Greeley."

The chairman's embarrassment could hardly be controlled. He had found that one of the "best women I know" wanted to vote.

Of Course You Never Heard a Woman Talk Like This—If He Was Your Boy What Would You Do?

Willie, will you just look at that clock? You have looked at it? Then don't you get ready for bed? You know that you must always be in bed by 8:30. I don't care if Ted Thomas sits up until nine. Half-past eight is your bedtime and—Stop that muttering! You know that I have told you many times not to mutter and—No, you cannot sit up to study your home lesson! Strange that you never think of your home lesson until your bedtime! You will have time to study it in the morning if you get up early. Yes, you will! No, the clock is not half an hour fast! I had your father tell it by his watch this very morning. No, you can't just finish that story. You have had the whole evening in which to read and study, and you have done nothing but dawdle. Now you are very eager to read and study, aren't you? I don't care anything about what other boys do, for—If you do not stop that muttering I shall tell your father! Yes, you will care! Had I want you to wash your hands good before you go to bed. When did you wash them? No, it isn't only boys who have clean hands. Willie Smythe, will you just bear in mind that it is your mother to whom you are speaking? Yes, you act as if you knew it! You will have cause to remember it if I call your father. He isn't your mother, as you very well know. Don't you be impudent! That is one thing your mother will not put up with, as I have told you a hundred times! Why don't you take off your shoes? You pick up that racket! The idea of flinging things around the room like that! That isn't the place for your jacket! I'd like to know what the house would look like if I wasn't particular! Stop jerking so at that shoe lace! I don't care if it is in a hard knot. Jerking like that will only make the knot harder. Now, I know that you would break that shoe lace! You would try the patience of—Willie! You pick up that shoe and put it where it belongs at night! No, you cannot have something to eat before you go to bed. The idea of it! After all the supper you had. What are you taking all of those things out of your pockets for? You get them right back! It would take a good hour to look over all of the things in your pockets. What under the sun, moon and stars are you carrying around three dirty handkerchiefs for? And you were fussing yesterday because you couldn't find a clean handkerchief!

Now you hustle off to the bathroom and give those hands a good scrubbing. You wish that you lived in a land where there wasn't any water? How long do you think that you would live there? You give those hands a good scrubbing! Use plenty of soap. Be sure and wash back of your ears. The plenty of water. I never saw such a boy as you are, to think that you can get yourself clean with half a

Swiss Army Scandal.

Much attention has been devoted by the Swiss newspapers of late to the case of a young Swiss officer, at St. Gall, who ordered a corporal to beat a private with his sword belt for a minor offense. When the colonel of the regiment heard of the affair he promptly placed both lieutenant and corporal under arrest, and the private was sent to hospital. The young officer has just been sentenced to ten days' confinement to barracks and the corporal to five days. The affair, however, has not yet ended, as the victim can claim damages for assault.

Then with secret rejoicing Miss Armor carried her confection to the empty table. To her chagrin, the waitress soon put a transient man beside her, and the stranger, spying the cherries, took a very plentiful helping on his plate. The maid was in high glee, having herself felt the pinch of Miss Armor's stinginess, but she dutifully interposed.

"Excuse me, sir," she said, "but that's a private dish."

The man looked blankly at the waitress and put a hand behind his ear with the gesture of the very deaf.

"That's all right," he answered pleasantly. "You may bring me everything you have."

The girl went away giggling, and spread the news in the kitchen region that retribution had overtaken Miss Armor, while the people at the neighboring tables looked and listened with all their might. Despite his deafness the newcomer was inclined to be sociable.

"These are the best cherries I've tasted for years," he told the cherries' owner. "I beg your pardon. Let me help you to them."

He immediately did so, ladling out a modest portion for her to sample, and, finishing his own plate, Miss Armor stared at him and said lellly: "You need not trouble yourself. They are all mine."

The stranger acknowledged this remark with a courteous smile and bow. His misfortune prevents me from following what you say," he regretted; "but I knew you'd like the cherries."

The jar was a good-sized one, but by the time the man had reached his third course the bottom layer of cherries was uncovered. Twice Miss Armor tried to get her property into her own keeping, but both times the amiable stranger helped her to a small taste and kept the jar out of the reach of her anxious hands. Finally she settled back in her chair to wait until he was gone, when she meant to tell that snickering waitress what the thought of her, and to carry off at least the remnants of her precious preserves; but only the former satisfaction was permitted her. When the transient man got his pudding he scraped the bottom layer of cherries out on top of it, and said with a sigh of anticipation: "I never tried this boarding house before, but I'm coming often now. I never saw such cherries since I was a boy. How can they afford to give them for the price she asks for table board?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

WILL EXTEND INVITATION FOR G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

Finance Committee Reports Fund Sufficient to Warrant City Extending Invitation for the Next Encampment and Everything Indicates Acceptance by G. A. R. Committee—Col. B. H. Millikan Is Made Chairman of Executive Committee and a Strong Working Organization Will Result.

Washington will get the G. A. R. encampment, or at least there is only one chance in a thousand that she will not, for the meeting held at Memorial Hall virtually "clinched" the encampment for this city next June and it now remains for the G. A. R. committee appointed to select a place to decide upon Washington. The financial committee made a report last night showing that they had raised enough money to guarantee expenses, and that as soon as the remaining contributions are made there will be enough money pledged to meet all obligations. The remaining contributions are expected to be in within the next day or two.

Following the report showing the thorough manner in which the committee had done its work, a committee was appointed to draw up a resolution inviting the Encampment to Washington next year. This committee is composed of Henry Brownell, A. P. Lynch, Dr. E. C. Hamilton, Dr. W. E. Ireland and Major R. G. Allen, and they will meet and make their report at an early day, so that the invitation may be sanctioned by the City Council and Mayor next Monday night.

By unanimous motion Col. B. H. Millikan was then made chairman of the executive committee, empowered to appoint the chairman of the various committees, and he and they to form the executive committee.

When this organization is completed it will represent a sound working body, which will be assisted by many more of the best citizens in the town, and upon September 3rd the committee appointed at the recent Encampment to secure a meeting place for next year, will meet in Cincinnati, and there is little question but what Washington will be unanimously decided upon by the committee, Col. B. H. Millikan being one of the members.

More enthusiasm was displayed at the meeting Tuesday night than at any previous meeting, and the financial committee was praised for the good work performed.

The amount reported by the committee was about $1250, while the amount secured when the former encampment was held, was about $2,000. The expenses will probably not be so heavy this time as previously.

Bible Class Will Graduate Sunday

A class of nine persons, representing various churches of our town, will graduate in the Advanced Teachers' Training Course next Sunday evening. The exercises to be held at the Christian church at 7:30 p. m.

For four years this class has been studying on Sunday afternoon and have completed a course in the Bible, in Missions and in Sunday School Pedagogy. This line of study was approved by the Ohio Sunday School Association and the examination papers were graded at the office in Columbus.

The class is composed of John Merriweather, Harry E. Wood, Mrs. Julia Benjimin, Mrs. Guem Stoltz, and Misses Louise Minshall, Mabel Wyatt, Leah L. Rannels, Mabel A. Jones and L. Etta Rannels.

The graduation exercises will consist of a class history, a class song arranged for the occasion, an address and presentation of diplomas. Everyone is cordially invited to be present.

LOCAL MEN ARE SAFE IN COLUMBUS SMASH

While Washington People Are Listed as Creditors in Petition of Bankrupt Armstrong, All Hold Full Security for Claims.

A LONG LIST OF LIABILITIES

Growing Out of Various Dealings of Broker Armstrong, Who Makes Bad Showing in His Petition to Be Adjudged a Bankrupt.

A great deal of interest was aroused by the publication of an article which appeared in the Columbus newspapers Tuesday and Wednesday in which the impression was created that local men had been losers to the extent of nearly $60,000 by the failure of a real estate man in Columbus, but it has been ascertained that the parties referred to will not lose a penny by the failure.

They hold good securities which had simply been endorsed by John B. Armstrong, the man who failed. Wednesday's Ohio State Journal makes the following mention in part of the affair:

"Playing nerve against capital and borrowing large sums of money with practically no security, until he was involved to the extent of $161,798.70, of which only $50,323 was secured, John R. Armstrong, aged 25, real estate broker of 501 Brunson building, filed a suit in voluntary bankruptcy in federal court yesterday. He declares that his assets are $300 in household goods, for which he claims exemption.

"Armstrong was in the real estate business some years ago, said Dr. J. M. Lisle yesterday, who is one of the creditors. "At that time he broke up and when he started in for the second time, he did business at first on the curb, to use his own words.

Heavy Rainfall Delays Thrashing

A heavy storm swept over the city and county near the midnight hour Tuesday night, and as a result of the downpour the farmers will not be able to thrash for two or three days. In most parts of the county the rain was very beneficial to the corn, although damaging to the wheat, oats and hay.

Lightning struck a number of places in and near the city, but no serious damage has been reported.

Audience Delighted With Piano Recital

An attractive and versatile recital was given by Miss Margaret McClure's advanced piano pupils assisted by Miss Stella Bazole, soprano, and Miss Jane Saxton, reader, at the First Baptist church last evening.

It proved to be a concert event of the utmost pleasure to a very large audience as well as an exhibition of the excellent work of Miss McClure's pupils. Each pupil showed thorough preparation and played with a clear cut technique and musical understanding that evidenced both able instruction and studious effort. Several of the pupils did work that convinced the audience of natural endowment beyond the ordinary, and will undoubtedly attain future recognition. One of the younger pupils, Miss Virginia Campbell, who was away at Miss McClure's former recital preface the program, presented by Miss Jane Paul, Warren Schliech, Miss Lydia Vincent, Mrs. B. H. Barchett, Miss Lydia Vincent, Mrs. H. C. Teachnor, Miss Mabel Calvert, Miss Lulu Henkle.

Miss McClure composes with the same inspiration that she instructs and three of her songs, lovely, melodious little gems, were effectively sung by Miss Bazole, of Williamsport. The singer has a mezzo soprano musical and of good range. Two pleasing little sketches written by Miss McClure were beautifully read by Miss Jane Saxton, whose charming naturalness and poise are exceptional in so young a girl.

He gradually extended his operations, although I expect that most of it was done on wind."

Owes Big Sums.

"Just what the nature of the man's transactions were, seems to be a matter of doubt. He is said to have put through many deals which were extremely visionary and financed principally on nerve. Together with his father, Judge S. R. Armstrong, formerly of the Third Judicial Circuit, and his brother, Russell L. Armstrong, formerly of the Allen County bar, he at one time was publisher of the Springfield Times.

Among the creditors mentioned are Humphry Jones of this city, claim was listed at $40,000. Fred B. Creamer, $5,500 and George Inskeep, $10,800. However, these men these men hold ample securities in the way of mortgages which had been made to Armstrong and endorsed over to them by Armstrong, so that while he listed the three men as creditors it was simply done because the mortgages had been made to him had been transferred by him to the local men.

Others listed as creditors, most of whom are reported to be amply secured are: Rev. W. H. Lewis, of Columbus, $10,000, Dr. Lisle, $13,000, Susan Pirrung, $5,465, General Charles H. Grosvenor of Athens holds a $15,000 note. T. J. Abernathy is Armstrong's attorney.

Armstrong has removed to Cleveland where he has opened offices and started anew.

The liability which Mr. Creamer and Mr. Inskeep are listed as holding against the bankrupt are on contractual liabilities growing out of property deals and which were never treated as real assets by the local men. These liabilities it is asserted are not the outgrowth of any money investment by the local men.

Neither Mr. Creamer nor Mr. Inskeep assert any claim against Armstrong. The alleged liability to the former grew out of an agreement of sale of lots in Bullet's Park addition to Columbus by the terms of which Armstrong paid Creamer part down and agreed to pay the balance when the deferred payments came due. Armstrong defaulted and Creamer subsequently sold the lots to another party for more than enough to cover the balance due from Armstrong on his contract so that the obligation to Creamer is wiped out.

of this sort.

To explain, all members of the Matinee Club are eligible to start and the horses will be divided as to their gait, pacing or trotting. Each race will be a single dash and horses will be required to go such distances in addition to one mile as may be deemed necessary to make them equal at the finish.

This handicap of extra distance will be determined by a committee of three members familiar with the different horses. Prizes will be given.

There will be one trotting race of this nature also one pacing race. In addition there will be a colt race for 2-year-old trotters, mile heats, and a running race of 1-2 mile heats.

This program alone would furnish a full afternoon's entertainment to say nothing of other attractions. One of the many is a large exhibit from the State Experimental Farm at Wooster. This is of unusual value to the progressive farmer who is interested in modern agricultural methods.

This feature of the fair cannot be given too much consideration as it brings to your door information that costs the taxpayers large sums of money to produce.

Another exhibit will be from the Blind Institute of Columbus.

Patrons of the fair are urged to make Tuesday a day for their attendance as they will find the grounds fresh and inviting.

New and novel musical numbers will be rendered by Washington's best talent, and a day of enjoyment is assured.

Wednesday will be Civil War Veterans' day and tickets are now being printed for free distribution to the veterans.

ENTERPRISE KNOCKING AT WASHINGTON'S DOOR

A number of local men are taking considerable interest in an enterprise which is now seeking admittance to Washington to locate here permanently and give the right parties a chance to make an independent fortune with a very nominal outlay. This enterprise is the Pomeroy Novelty Company, manufacturers of harness attachments and which promises to completely revolutionize the making of harness and accessories, and Mr. E. A. Nelson, who has patented a number of practical articles, is now in the city with a proposition which looks exceedingly good.

Mr. Nelson has two reasons for moving his factory. The first is that the present location is undesirable because of poor shipping facilities etc., and the second is that the demand for the indispensable articles manufactured has grown to such proportions that he must have more capital and a bigger factory, and has an offer which is apparently very reasonable. He does not ask something for nothing.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 Mr. Nelson will give a public demonstration of the various articles manufactured by his firm. This will take place in front of the Fayette and

Midland banks, and will demonstrate clearly the importance of the invention and the advantages to be derived from them.

He is located at the Arlington Hotel where he will be glad to meet all who are interested, and will take pleasure in showing the articles in question.

Delaware and Urbana citizens are interested in securing the factory, but Mr. Nelson has long had a desire, to locate here, and if the proper partners are found, will do so without delay.

ENTERPRISE KNOCKING AT WASHINGTON'S DOOR

A number of local men are taking considerable interest in an enterprise which is now seeking admittance to Washington to locate here permanently and give the right parties a chance to make an independent fortune with a very nominal outlay. This enterprise is the Pomeroy Novelty Company, manufacturers of harness attachments and which promises to completely revolutionize the making of harness and accessories, and Mr. E. A. Nelson, who has patented a number of practical articles, is now in the city with a proposition which looks exceedingly good.

Mr. Nelson has two reasons for moving his factory. The first is that the present location is undesirable because of poor shipping facilities etc., and the second is that the demand for the indispensable articles manufactured has grown to such proportions that he must have more capital and a bigger factory, and has an offer which is apparently very reasonable. He does not ask something for nothing.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 Mr. Nelson will give a public demonstration of the various articles manufactured by his firm. This will take place in front of the Fayette and

Midland banks, and will demonstrate clearly the importance of the invention and the advantages to be derived from them.

He is located at the Arlington Hotel where he will be glad to meet all who are interested, and will take pleasure in showing the articles in question.

Delaware and Urbana citizens are interested in securing the factory, but Mr. Nelson has long had a desire, to locate here, and if the proper partners are found, will do so without delay.

IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

The home of Dr. C. C. Hazard witnessed one of the prettiest of children's parties Tuesday afternoon in honor of the fifth birthday of the cunning little daughter, Charlotte. Fifteen tiny girls in white frocks and big butterfly bows, trooped over the lawn in merry play, their happy frolic a delight to watch.

Mrs. Hazard was assisted in caring for them by Mrs. O. C. Borden, of New Vienna and Mrs. Harris Marchant.

After a round of outdoor games, with bon bons adding to the joy of the little ones, the children were invited to the dining room for a delicious summer collation. A pink and white color scheme was beautifully carried out in decorations, sweet peas and sweet williams and in the menu were served. The birthday cake, iced with pink icing, had on top five blazing pink candles, and the favors were hand painted, with the picture of the five-year-old hostess in the center.

A number of pretty birthday gifts were brought by the children present, who included Elizabeth Borden, New Vienna, Jean Worthington, Helen Rodecker, Aime Katz, Wilma Dale, Genevieve Price, Ruth Marchant, Dorothy and Marjorie Sparks, Georgiana Glasscock, Doris Virginia Springer, Genevieve Hukill, Helen Rodecker, Mary Elizabeth McKinn

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Robbins and son, Roscoe, of Sabina, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Worthington the first of the week.

Mrs. J. Star Smith and daughter, Miss Dorothy, spent Tuesday in Cincinnati to meet some college girls who were friends of Miss Dorothy at Ward Seminary, Nashville Tenn.

Miss Louise St. John, of Bristol, Tenn., Misses Nina Bonham, Helen Jones and Emily Tanzey, Messrs Maynard and Winchel Craig, Fred Carpenter and Carl Reed picniced at Rock Mills last evening.

Albert Mier has returned home from a three weeks' visit with his aunt, Mrs. Paul Jones in Columbus. He was accompanied home by Parker and William Horton who will visit him for a week or ten days.

Olin Moon, who has held the agency of the Metropolitan Insurance Company the past spring and summer, will be transferred to Washington C. H., this fall, and with his wife will move to that city.—Sabina Tribune.

CENTENNIAL DAY FOR VETERANS

They Will Have Post of Honor at Columbus Celebration.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 30, THE DATE

Special Meeting of the Ohio State Grange, With Distinguished Speakers, One of the Features of the Program—Parade of Veterans of All Wars and Ohio National Guard Planned—Campfire and Gorgeous Spectacular Pageant at Night.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—Farmers of Ohio and veterans of the various wars will have the place of honor on one day's program of the Ohio-Columbus Centennial, to be held in Columbus the week beginning Aug. 26, to mark the one-hundredth anniversary of the establishment of a permanent capital in Ohio.

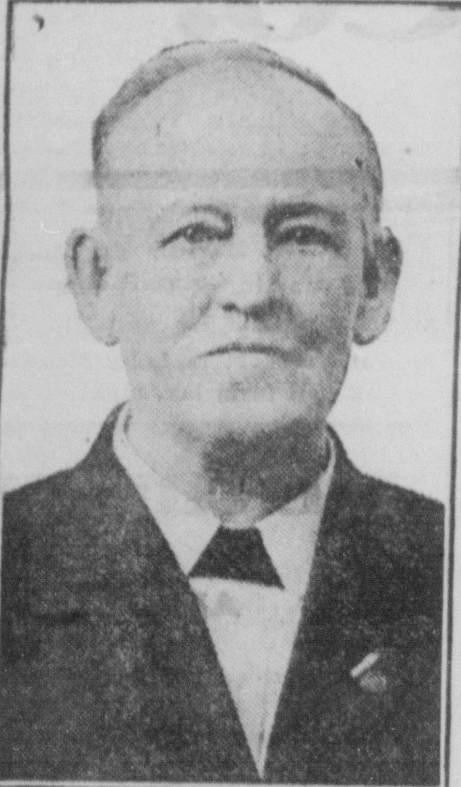

Friday, Aug. 30, has been designated "Agricultural and Veterans' Day," and plans for the entertainment of the veterans will make the gathering the most notable of its kind ever held in Ohio. The Centennial Commission and a committee representing the soldiers have announced that "Veterans' Day" will be for all veterans, including those who are not affiliated with any of the soldier organizations.

On the morning of Aug. 30 there will be a parade by the Grand Army of the Republic and allied organizations, Spanish War Veterans, the Ohio National Guard and all other veterans who care to participate. General R. B. Brown of Zanesville, former commander of the Department of Ohio G. A. R., also former commander-in-chief of the national organization, will be grand marshal of this parade.

From the time they arrive until they depart the veterans will be entertained. The parade will be short, so that the marchers may not become too tired to enjoy the festivities that will follow, one feature of which will be a great camp fire.

In the afternoon there will be a special meeting of the Ohio State Grange with distinguished speakers, and while this meeting is in progress for the farmers there will be patriotic meetings for the veterans.

The evening will be marked by a gorgeous spectacular parade, the $50,000 pageant of historical floats, representing Ohio's eighty-eight counties and the states of the Northwest territory, entitled, "The Story of the State." There will be thirty tableaux cars in the pageant, four of which will depict scenes from the Civil war. The characters on these floats will be assumed by men who fought in the battles of 1861-1865.

GEN. R. B. BROWN of Zanesville, Grand Marshal of Veterans' Day Parade, Ohio-Columbus Centennial

Colonel Dodd, commandant of the United States barracks at Columbus, will cooperate with the Centennial Commission in caring for those veterans who will be unable to secure hotel accommodations. They will be quartered for a night at the barracks along with the younger regulars of the United States army.

On the morning of Aug. 30 the veterans will be served an old-fashioned army breakfast, the kind the veterans of the Civil war received while in the field. After guard mount and dress parade by the regulars the parade ground will be given over to the veterans to show the soldiers of this generation how a dress parade was conducted in '61.

Colonel Dodd has also announced that the badge of the day will admit the veterans to privileges at the barracks, and other arrangements have been made whereby the badge will gain free admission to Orléans and Indianola parks.

The various posts of the state have been requested to bring their entire rifle and drum corps to Columbus for the day, and assurance is given that there will be an abundance of martial music on "Veterans' Day" at the Centennial celebration.

Hocking Valley, Pennsylvania, Norfolk and Western and New York Central line agents are authorized to arrange for rooms for visitors to the Ohio-Columbus Centennial the week of Aug. 26 to Sept. 1.

HOME-COMING DAY

Descendants of Ohio's Governors to Meet During Centennial Week.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—One of the most interesting events of the Ohio-Columbus Centennial, to be held in Columbus the week beginning Aug. 26 to mark the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of a permanent capital in Ohio, will be "Ohio and Homecoming day," Aug. 26. The centennial commission searched old records and made numerous inquiries, as a result of which letters were sent to several hundred direct descendants of Ohio governors, inviting them to attend the celebration.

Replies have been received from nearly all, and on the second day of the week's festivities there will be held a reunion of the descendants of Ohio governors and the formation of a permanent organization.

Governor Harmon will preside over the meeting and addresses will be made by former United States Senator Joseph B. Foraker and ex-Governor Campbell.

The list compiled by the Centennial Commission contains the names of more than 500 direct descendants of Ohio governors in 300 families. They occupy every station in life, and a remarkable feature of the list is the number of male descendants who have entered the army and navy of the United States.

SUFFRAGISTS TO PARADE

Will Hold State-Wide Demonstration at Centennial.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—Not to be outdone by other organizations which are to take part in the Ohio-Columbus Centennial, to be held at Columbus the week of Aug. 26, the advocates of woman suffrage have arranged to make a demonstration of their numbers while the Capital City is entertaining its thousands of centennial visitors.

The suffragists have arranged to participate in the exercises the first day of the celebration. Men as well as women who favor the cause will have a place in the parade to be held that day, and the centennial commission has granted a request that a tableau car representing the suffragists be included.

To make the demonstration of more than local significance a committee probably will visit other cities of Ohio to invite delegations to Columbus.

The proposed state-wide demonstration will come within a few days before the "mere man" portion of the people will go to the polls and vote on a proposal adopted by the constitutional convention giving the women of Ohio the right to participate in all elections.

Mothers' and Children's Day to Be Held at the Ohio-Columbus Centennial, August 31

MRS. HOWARD HUCKINS, Oberlin, O.

The wife of Governor Harmon and Mrs. Huckins have been prominent in making "Mothers' and Children's Day" (Aug. 31) of the Ohio-Columbus Centennial a day long to be remembered, as it will witness the largest gathering of prominent club women of Ohio and other states ever held.

Mrs. Harmon will be honorary chairman of the day, and Mrs. Huckins, who is president of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs, will be active chairman of the exercises.

MRS. JUDSON HARMON, Columbus, O.

VISITORS WILL BE WELL CARED FOR Centennial Commission Ample Provide For Their Comfort.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—Visitors in Columbus the week of the Ohio-Columbus Centennial, Aug. 26-Sept. 1, which will celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of a permanent capital in Ohio, will find everything arranged for their convenience and comfort.

The centennial commission will have information bureaus and comfort stations in all parts of the city, where strangers may be guided to any point of the city or assisted in locating relatives and friends whose addresses they may not know.

But the most important feature of the information bureau will be the "bed and board department" for those unable to secure accommodation at the Columbus hotels. The centennial commission will provide the names and addresses of Columbus citizens who can furnish board and lodging, together with the number that can be accommodated at each home. Visitors will have no trouble in finding desirable lodging.

The "Boy Scouts" of Columbus have volunteered to act as guides to strangers of the city during the week of the centennial.

NEGROES AT CENTENNIAL

Prominent Colored Men to Make Addresses at Columbus.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—Colored citizens of Columbus will do their share in making the Ohio-Columbus Centennial celebration a success.

They have arranged a program for Aug. 29 which will attract those of their race from all parts of the state to Columbus on that day.

In the afternoon there will be a joint meeting of all those bodies, to be addressed by W. H. Lewis of Washington, D. C., assistant attorney general of the United States; John Mitchell, Jr., president of the bank at Richmond, Va., and E. H. Morris of Chicago.

CHURCHES TO UNITE

Union Services to Be Held in Park at Ohio-Columbus Centennial.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—Sunday, Sept. 1, the last day of the Ohio-Columbus Centennial, to be held in Columbus the week beginning Aug. 26 to mark the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of a permanent capital in Ohio, has been set aside as "Religious day."

In the morning there will be services in all the churches of Columbus with special reference to the history of the city.

At 10 o'clock there will be a religious service in the city park, at which all churches will unite in singing hymns and recitations.

The service will be held in the city park, at which all churches will unite in singing hymns and recitations.

Keeping the Children Amused.

A delightful way to amuse children, and incidentally their parents, is by illustrating a fairy story, the title of which is guessed by those watching the performance.

Select a well-known story and divide it into short parts, or acts. Then let the children act the various parts in dumb show, using gestures without speech, which are not hard to teach very small children.

The idea is a good one for bazaar or school entertainments, where a public performance can be the climax of several rehearsals.

If possible, dress the little actors in costume and let the performance be given to the accompaniment of suggestive music that will help them make the right gestures at the proper time. Without having to think of lines to recite, children learn positions and gestures very quickly.

Kansas Cases Up to Court For Decision

Supreme Court to Decide Eligibility of Electors.

New York, July 31.—Three justices of the United States supreme court will sit in the federal building tomorrow to hear arguments on the application of the Taft forces in Kansas for a writ of error in the Kansas election cases, involving the right of the electors who say they intend to vote for Roosevelt, if elected, to have their names on the ballot in the Kansas election. The Roosevelt electors, named at the convention that instructed for the colonel, have announced that under the constitution they have a right to vote as they please, although the custom has been for the electors to vote for the candidate who heads the ticket. A county clerk in Kansas refused to put the names of the electors on the ballot and, under the instructions of Governor Stubbs, the attorney general applied for a writ of mandamus against the clerk, which was granted by the Kansas supreme court.

CENTENNIAL DAY FOR VETERANS

They Will Have Post of Honor at Columbus Celebration.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 30, THE DATE

Special Meeting of the Ohio State Grange, With Distinguished Speakers, One of the Features of the Program—Parade of Veterans of All Wars and Ohio National Guard Planned—Campfire and Gorgeous Spectacular Pageant at Night.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—Farmers of Ohio and veterans of the various wars will have the place of honor on one day's program of the Ohio-Columbus Centennial, to be held in Columbus the week beginning Aug. 26, to mark the one-hundredth anniversary of the establishment of a permanent capital in Ohio.

Friday, Aug. 30, has been designated "Agricultural and Veterans' Day," and plans for the entertainment of the veterans will make the gathering the most notable of its kind ever held in Ohio. The Centennial Commission and a committee representing the soldiers have announced that "Veterans' Day" will be for all veterans, including those who are not affiliated with any of the soldier organizations.

On the morning of Aug. 30 there will be a parade by the Grand Army of the Republic and allied organizations, Spanish War Veterans, the Ohio National Guard and all other veterans who care to participate. General R. B. Brown of Zanesville, former commander of the Department of Ohio G. A. R., also former commander-in-chief of the national organization, will be grand marshal of this parade.

From the time they arrive until they depart the veterans will be entertained. The parade will be short, so that the marchers may not become too tired to enjoy the festivities that will follow, one feature of which will be a great camp fire.

In the afternoon there will be a special meeting of the Ohio State Grange with distinguished speakers, and while this meeting is in progress for the farmers there will be patriotic meetings for the veterans.

The evening will be marked by a gorgeous spectacular parade, the $50,000 pageant of historical floats, representing Ohio's eighty-eight counties and the states of the Northwest territory, entitled, "The Story of the State." There will be thirty tableaux cars in the pageant, four of which will depict scenes from the Civil war. The characters on these floats will be assumed by men who fought in the battles of 1861-1865.

Colonel Dodd, commandant of the United States barracks at Columbus, will co-operate with the Centennial Commission in caring for those veterans who will be unable to secure hotel accommodations. They will be quartered for a night at the barracks along with the younger regulars of the United States army.

On the morning of Aug. 30 the veterans will be served an old-fashioned army breakfast, the kind the veterans of the Civil war received while in the field. After guard mount and dress parade by the regulars the parade ground will be given over to the veterans to show the soldiers of this generation how a dress parade was conducted in '61.

Colonel Dodd has also announced that the badge of the day will admit the veterans to privileges at the barracks, and other arrangements have been made whereby the badge will gain free admission to Orléans and Indiana parks.

The various posts of the state have been requested to bring their entire life and drum corps to Columbus for the day, and assurance is given that there will be an abundance of martial music on "Veterans' Day" at the Centennial celebration.

Hocking Valley, Pennsylvania, Norfolk & Western and New York Central line agents are authorized to arrange for rooms for visitors to the Ohio-Columbus Centennial the week of Aug. 26 to Sept. 1.

DESCENDANTS OF OHIO'S GOVERNORS TO MEET DURING CENTENNIAL WEEK.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—One of the most interesting events of the Ohio-Columbus Centennial, to be held in Columbus the week beginning Aug. 26 to mark the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of a permanent capital in Ohio, will be "Ohio and Homecoming day," Aug. 26. The centennial commission searched old records and made numerous inquiries, as a result of which letters were sent to several hundred direct descendants of Ohio governors, inviting them to attend the celebration.

Replies have been received from nearly all, and on the second day of the week's festivities there will be held a reunion of the descendants of Ohio governors and the formation of a permanent organization.

Governor Harmon will preside over the meeting and addresses will be made by former United States Senator Joseph B. Foraker and ex-Governor Campbell.

The list compiled by the Centennial Commission contains the names of more than 500 direct descendants of Ohio governors in 300 families. They occupy every station in life, and a remarkable feature of the list is the number of male descendants who have entered the army and navy of the United States.

Mothers' and Children's Day to Be Held at the Ohio-Columbus Centennial, August 31

MRS. HOWARD HUCKINS, Oberlin, O. MRS. JUDSON HARMON, Columbus, O.

THE wife of Governor Harmon and Mrs. Huckins have been prominent in making "Mothers' and Children's Day" (Aug. 31) of the Ohio-Columbus Centennial a day long to be remembered, as it will witness the largest gathering of prominent club women of Ohio and other states ever held.

Mrs. Harmon will be honorary chairman of the day, and Mrs. Huckins, who is president of the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs, will be active chairman of the exercises.

VISITORS WILL BE WELL CARED FOR

Centennial Commission Ample Provide For Their Comfort.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—Visitors in Columbus the week of the Ohio-Columbus Centennial, Aug. 26-Sept. 1, which will celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the establishment of a permanent capital in Ohio, will find everything arranged for their convenience and comfort.

The centennial commission will have information bureaus and comfort stations in all parts of the city, where strangers may be guided to any point of the city or assisted in locating relatives and friends whose addresses they may not know.

But the most important feature of the information bureau will be the "bed and board department" for those unable to secure accommodation at the Columbus hotels. The centennial commission will provide the names and addresses of Columbus citizens who can furnish board and lodging, together with the number that can be accommodated at each home. Visitors will have no trouble in finding desirable lodging.

The "Boy Scouts" of Columbus have volunteered to act as guides to strangers of the city during the week of the centennial.

NEGROES AT CENTENNIAL

Prominent Colored Men to Make Addresses at Columbus.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—Colored citizens of Columbus will do their share in making the Ohio-Columbus Centennial celebration a success.

They have arranged a program for Aug. 29 which will attract those of their race from all parts of the state to Columbus on that day.

In the afternoon there will be a joint meeting of all those bodies, to be addressed by W. H. Lewis of Washington, D. C., assistant attorney general of the United States; John Mitchell, Jr., president of the bank at Richmond, Va., and E. H. Morris of Chicago.

WOMEN TO MAKE DEMONSTRATION AT CENTENNIAL.

Columbus, O.—(Special.)—Not to be outdone by other organizations which are to take part in the Ohio-Columbus Centennial, to be held at Columbus the week of Aug. 26, the advocates of woman suffrage have arranged to make a demonstration of their numbers while the Capital City is entertaining its thousands of centennial visitors.

The suffragists have arranged to participate in the exercises the first day of the celebration. Men as well as women who favor the cause will have a place in the parade to be held that day, and the centennial commission has granted a request that a tableau car representing the suffragists be included.

To make the demonstration of more than local significance a committee probably will visit other cities of Ohio to invite delegations to Columbus.

The proposed state-wide demonstration will come within a few days before the "mere man" portion of the people will go to the polls and vote on a proposal adopted by the constitutional convention giving the women of Ohio the right to participate in all elections.

Keeping the Children Amused.

A delightful way to amuse children, and incidentally their parents, is by illustrating a fairy story, the title of which is guessed by those watching the performance.

Select a well-known story and divide it into short parts, or acts. Then let the children act the various parts in dumb show, using gestures without speech, which are not hard to teach very small children.

The idea is a good one for bazaar or school entertainments, where a public performance can be the climax of several rehearsals.

If possible, dress the little actors in costume and let the performance be given to the accompaniment of suggestive music that will help them make the right gestures at the proper time. Without having to think of lines to recite, children learn positions and gestures very quickly.

HEALTH IS WEALTH.

Healthy people are healthy and happy; they do their work cheerily and tirelessly. Of first importance in maintaining good health is the having of absolutely clean cooking vessels and tableware. Easy Task soap is a sterilizer as well as a cleaner. It drives away disease germs as well as dirt. Show your family doctor the information on the wrapper and he will recommend its use.

Accuses Wife Wants Divorce

A divorce petition somewhat along the sensational order was filed in probate court Tuesday by Henry Knight against Pauline Knight, in which Knight names one C. C. Martin as co-respondent.

Knight claims he was married to the defendant in Cattleburg, Ky., on April 13, 1897 and that two children, Harry M., aged 11 years and Howard M., aged 6 years, were born to them.

He further claims that from March 26 to April 20, 1912 she lived in a house with C. C. Martin on the James Thompson farm in Concord township.

In addition to asking divorce he wants custody of the two children.

Gets Out And Must Stay Out

Mrs. "Hoggy" Bainter, sentenced to the Xenia workhouse to serve out a fine and 30 days, was released from the workhouse Wednesday and given one day in which to look after her affairs in this city and then leave it forever.

She promised to remain out of the city and give no more trouble here if permitted to leave the workhouse. The remaining sentence was suspended pending the close observance of her promise.

Her husband is doing time in the Columbus workhouse for bootlegging.

Elopement Bug In Chillicothe

The elopement bug, or rather a whole swarm of them, find plenty of material to work upon in that ancient metropolis, Chillicothe, and within the past few weeks a number of young couples have eloped and were married elsewhere.

But the elopement bee has not been content with the laddies and lassies, and grown-ups have taken a fancy to their neighbors' husband or wife as the case may be, and sensation after sensation has resulted.

The most recent escapade is that of Hewitt Day, a railroad and a Miss Grace Wallingford. Mrs. Day followed her husband to Midland City and towed him safely home, but he quickly disappeared again, taking with him the Wallingford girl, it is said.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Daily Herald:

Our "Band Boys" are trying hard to furnish the public with excellent music, and they should receive every encouragement.

I am informed that the men who managed the Home-Coming celebration, (and managed it mightily well too), have several hundred dollars left in the treasury, and it was the intention of these men at the time the committee was organized, to expend any funds which remained after payment of the expenses of the Home-Coming in the erection of a permanent memorial of the event.

If such is the case let me suggest that these gentlemen take the money and build an attractive steel bandstand in the Court House yard. I am certain the band would appreciate it and the public say Amen.

Very respectfully,
A Taxpayer.

CLINKER'S BAD RECORD MERCY THAT STINGS

WHY QUIGWAY REFUSED TO HELP HIS ELECTION.

Declares Candidate Entirely Lacking In Moral Character and Proves It by the Episode of the Cow.

"Quigway," said Weatherwax, "we want to elect Clinker alderman from this ward. He's the finest kind of a man, stands strong for the uplift and all that sort of thing, but he always has refused to have anything to do with politics. However, we need him, and if the matter is placed before him in the right way he'll consent to run. A committee of leading citizens of the ward will call on him this evening, and we want you to go along and help us persuade him to make the race."

"Well, you can count me out," replied Quigway. "I haven't any use for Clinker, and I think our institutions have come to a dickens of a pass when such a man is even suggested for public office. Clinker is entirely lacking in moral character, and it will be an evil day for the people when he goes into office."

"You're talking through your turban, Quigway. Why, Clinker has a spotless record. You can't find a flaw in it anywhere."

"Well, that shows all you know, and if you elect Clinker I'll move out of this ward and stay out. I couldn't sleep at night if that man was in office."

"Two years ago I was looking around for a good, respectable family cow, the kind you read about in Sun-School books. I didn't know anything about cows, except that they gave milk under proper conditions, and we wanted real milk in our house. Clinker heard that I was in the market for a cow, and he came over to my place and told me he had the very animal I wanted. I had the utmost faith in him at that time and placed myself entirely in his hands. I told him candidly that I didn't know a cow from a canal boat, so far as practical information went, and asked him, as man to man, to give me a square deal."

"He placed his hand on his heart and swore by his grandmother's nutmeg grater that the cow he was offering for sale was perfectly refined and ladylike, and that she gave an abundance of real milk. So I took him at his word, Weatherwax, and counted out 50 large, gun metal dollars, which represented the savings of months. He brought the cow over and tied her in my shed, and in the evening I went forth with a beautiful new tin bucket and sat down to milk her. The next thing I knew I was standing on my shoulder blades, and that handsome new tin bucket was flattened against the roof of the shed. I never saw a cow as ambidextrous with her hind legs—and Clinker said she was so tame the children could play with her!"

"I went over to his place, my blood boiling with indignation, and he went back home with me and surveyed the scene of the uprising, and had the nerve to say that the cow kicked because I sat at her left side instead of her right side, when I began to milk! As though a cow cared for such technicalities! That's the sort of a man Clinker is. He's a sea lawyer, who would rather argue far-fetched points than be just and fair. I wanted him to take the cow back, but he wouldn't do it. The cow was just as he represented her, he said, and the fault was all mine. That's the way he'll conduct himself if he breaks into the council. He'll say the fault is with the people who elected him, if anything goes wrong."

"A week after I bought that cow she quit giving milk altogether. She didn't give any more milk than a lumber wagon, and Clinker had assured me that she would keep the family supplied for a year. I went to him and read the riot act, and he asked a lot of fool questions and then took refuge in technicalities again. He said the cow went dry because I milked her at all hours of the day. Did you ever hear anything like that? There wasn't a clock in the barn and the cow didn't carry a chronometer, and it made no difference to her when I milked her. And that's the kind of a man you want to elect as alderman!"

"When you place the destinies of this town in the hands of men of that character it is time for good citizens to hike for the tall timber."—Chicago News.

Got Right One That Time.

"Crack" went the baseball bat, and "crash" went the big windowpane of a kosher butcher in East Eighty-sixth street as the ball found its mark, says the New York Daily Mail.

Like a flash, out darted the butcher and with multitudinous outcries started in pursuit of half a dozen small boys, who were legging it for dear life in the direction of Carl Schurz Park.

His chase would have proved fruitless had not a policeman, by one of those miracles that occasionally happen, come around a corner just ahead of the fugitives and proved nimble enough to grab one of them.

The prisoner, knuckles in eyes, protested that he hadn't "done nothin'" and there was growing a doubt as to the value of the capture until a powerful female voice descended from an upper window across the street, saying:

"Dot's de boy! Dot's de boy! I haf him myself seen from my upstairs window down."

NIGHT COURT JUDGE METES OUT DISGUISED INJUSTICE.

Fashionable Women Enjoy His Cruelly Impertinent Questioning of Forlorn Girl and Then Praise Him for His Kindness.

"She's been up here thirty times," said the court officer, with a backward jerk of his thumb.

She wasn't a bad looking girl at all. Not many months ago she had been a very good looking girl indeed. In spite of the slush underfoot and the drizzling rain that had been falling, she was not noticeably bedraggled when she came into the night court for women. One chiefly noticed that her eyes were dull and her bearing careless. She had become used to the routine of her life—and that routine included the court. Emotion had been burned out of her by the caustic of existence. A flare of drunken anger—a maudlin sob—were her limits of expression. She mounted the bridge dreadingly, hopelessly. It was evident enough the girl didn't care.

"Ask her—"

A buzz of whispering filled the court room. One looked up to see a bevy of handsomely dressed women sitting by the side of the judge. They wore evening gowns. Gems sparkled against the pallor of their breasts. Their fair shoulders were protected against the draughts of the filthy courtroom by costly furs. They rested white kid elbows upon the judge's desk and propped their arrogant and complacent faces in slender hands and stared that dingy courtroom down. The judge had obviously been dining with them. His handsome face was flushed and he often laughed behind his hand with the prettiest of his callers. At their prompting he asked that poor, bedeviled, hopeless woman who stood before him questions that were still cruelly impertinent, though he was a judge and she a woman of the streets. The silk clad women by his side tittered and exchanged mocking glances. The woman's voice grew hoarse and strained as she replied. She stared at the women of another world as those women of the poor streets in Paris may have stared at the women of the court some hundred odd years ago.

"You may go now," said the judge, silkily. The women who sat by his side upon a bench that had been defiled, stretched out their pretty hands and patted him gently upon the arm.

"How good you are to these people," said one to him, addressing him by his first name.

The old court officer was leading the woman toward the door. A bright spot burned high upon her cheekbones. The flames of rage flared in her widely opened, staring eyes. "G'wan now, kid," said the old court officer, patting her shoulder with awkward kindness. "Don't you care."

At the Bird Store Window.

The bird store window is an unfailing attraction to many people. Perhaps it attracts men more than women, but it is a magnet that draws all children.

Let small boys or girls discover a bird store and they halt and linger long, wondering over or admiring the strange or beautiful feathered creatures within, and children walking with their mother if they should spy this window are sure to tug her toward it to give them a chance to look in. The bird store window interests all children, as it appears to interest also many grown men who may be drawn to it by a natural fondness for birds and animals, or be attracted by the novel or striking character of the exhibit on view.

Here, for instance, in this window is a white peacock, a remarkable bird seen with its plumage in whatever form. As with characteristic deliberation it walks about with its long tall feathers folded and trailing people stop to look at it, and then let it raise and spread its great white fan and many more halt and gather in a crowd around the window.—New York Sun.

Hurt in the Sequel.

Graham Ferguson has just returned after an absence of six months on "the other side." Bergie did not spend all his time abroad at the home of his Ayrshire ancestors; he visited Switzerland and Italy and did not neglect Paris. It was in this famous city that he witnessed a famous sight.

"When I was in France," he told a newspaper friend Sunday, "I saw a duel."

"Oh! One of those French duels, eh? Nobody was hurt, I presume?"

"You are wrong there. One of the contestants was seriously injured."

"One of the contestants? Surely you mean, a bystander or a second or a surgeon?"

"No, sir; one of the duelists. He had a rib broken."

"You astound me! One of those toy raplers could not smash a rib, surely?"

"Rapier, nothing! The brave man's rib was broken in the embrace with his opponent, after the duel was over."

"How far is it to the next town?" inquired the traveler in the mud bespattered buggy.

"Bout ten mile, mister," said the farmer by the roadside.

"Long miles, too, I suppose."

"No, sir, they're not so very long, but you'll find them pretty blamed thick."

Accuses Wife Wants Divorce

A divorce petition somewhat along the sensational order was filed in probate court Tuesday by Henry Knight against Pauline Knight, in which Knight names one C. C. Martin as co-respondent.

Knight claims he was married to the defendant in Cattleburg, Ky., on April 13, 1897 and that two children, Harry M., aged 11 years and Howard M., aged 6 years, were born to them.

He further claims that from March 26 to April 20, 1912 she lived in a house with C. C. Martin on the James Thompson farm in Concord township.

In addition to asking divorce he wants custody of the two children.
